It was with dedicated efforts of FPSC officers/officials and management, that all the exams went quite smoothly throughout the country. As with all other organizations, FPSC also adjusted its routine with restrictive measures introduced by NCOC and arranged online video link meetings/webinars to the maximum possible extent to face the challenges amid heightened constraints.

The Commission has been highlighting these issues in its previous Annual Reports as well to invite attention of the policy makers to take appropriate measures so that both women and minorities take full benefit of the reserved quota.

8.6 Table 41 reflects that a vast ratio of written qualified candidates who did not have a background in their educational career, scored 60% or above in the subjects of Gender Studies, Business Administration, Sindhi, History of USA, Pure Mathematics, Criminology and Applied

Mathematics. It indicates that selection of optional subjects was highly random. Therefore, it was quite evident that the candidates who did not study a subject at academic level, lacked good comprehension of such discipline.

XVII : Profile of Examiner’s observations in Compulsory Subjects during CSS 2021:

8.16 The Examiners made observations on the candidates' performance in compulsory and optional subjects opted by candidates in written part of the CSS Competitive Examination 2021. Important aspects of such observations are reproduced as follows:-

A: Compulsory Subjects

English Essay:

Appeared	Fail	Pass
16887	14760	2127

The candidates were asked to write an essay of 2500 to 3000 words based on an outline by ensuring different forms of discourse, i.e., exposition, argumentation, description and narration. Those qualified answered the exact inquiry set to reasonable extent, presented appropriate point of view, were critical and analytical, provided reasons in view of sound proof to help the primary contention, had good paragraphing, evaluated alternate point of view, included references, and composed unmistakably without waffle, reiteration, stupendous speculations, superfluous language and individual tales.

Majority of Candidates had no idea about the art of essay writing which, in fact, is the demonstration of the entire language training a person receives throughout his/her academic or professional life. Conceivably, they might have taken essay writing a long, boring and exhaustive activity and faced hard time getting started, they struggled to organize and use mechanics of writing, remained inefficient in retrieving the right word(s) to express ideas, and, therefore couldn't foster them smoothly. Majority was not successful in keeping track of their thoughts while also getting them down on paper.

But it is imperative to remember that the above findings don't proclaim candidates good or bad rather bring our attention to the most significant aspect of the exam, i.e., competitiveness; all don't have equivalent language capability.

English (Precise & Composition):

Appeared	Fail	Pass
16887	15457	1430

In the Précis question most of the candidates failed to solve it because they could not skim and decipher the thematic features evidence due to clear lack of intellectual and cognitive capacity. Most of the students inserted their subjective opinions, remarks, and criticism thus bypassing facts and data given in the "passage. Another deficiency is the language, mostly jerky and riddled with basic flaws of grammar and syntax. In short, the written expression on the whole was neither precise nor concise. In a précis passage the points do not have equal weight therefore one has to make a list of points/prioritization before turning to ancillary points. Consequently, in many solutions there was an element of redundancy which overcomplicated the précis answers.

GK-I (General Science & Ability):

Appeared	Fail	Pass
16887	13750	3137

During the evaluation of the answer books, it has been observed that some of the candidates wasted their time and resources by sitting in the examination without any proper homework. I personally feel that there should be some procedure (screening test) through which this type of non serious candidates may be eradicated from the main stream of the competitive examination system.

Majority of the candidates were very poor in basic/mental mathematics. Division of 50 by 6 was an uphill task for many of the students. Majority of the candidates never followed the instructions to the candidates printed on the front page of the answer book and attempted their answers with their own allotted random sequence. In some cases the candidates fail to write the question number in accordance with the question paper and making it difficult for examination appropriately marks their scripts. The answers were based on memorization rather than understanding of the subject. Overall, the performance and level of understanding the basic concepts of everyday science was extremely poor despite the fact that paper was set within the limits of the prescribed syllabus.

GK-II (Current Affairs):

Appeared	Fail	Pass
16887	16396	491

The paper was designed in such a manner that anyone reading daily newspaper could have easily attempted it. There are some observations that I have made while reading the copies:

First, majority of the candidates did not pay heed to understanding the question. It seems most of them have not even read the complete questions. They simply read the phenomena about which questions were asked and started writing about it. For example, one question was about the similarities and differences between Nagorno Karabagh and Kashmir conflicts. Candidates, instead of highlighting similarities and differences, wrote about the nature of the two conflicts. Another question asked about the ways Covid-19 has affected the contours of contemporary world order. Candidates, instead of writing about its impacts on contemporary world order, simply detailed the features of Covid-19 and precautions that one should take in order to avoid it. Second, a large chunk of candidates quoted the Face book and Twitter data in order to detail their answers. It seems that whatever is been spread on the social media - real or fake - is been taken by the majority of our youth as the real truths.

Third, CSS training academies have played an important role in ruining the standard of the candidates. A big number of answer sheets repeated the same headings, same content, same data, even at times similar words. This gives the impression that some trainers have given them written notes and told them to simply learn specific headings and data by heart and start writing once seeing the phenomena in the questions. Candidates did not even bother to read complete questions and filled pages without understanding the dimensions of the phenomena. Fourth, written expression of the candidates remained very low. Quality of written English has gone down with each passing day. Fifth, candidates showed a little knowledge about the current affairs. For example, a question asked about the rise of right and how is it impacting the liberal democracies in the world. Right is a term used for the political actors having specific mindset - usually associated with conservatism, ultra-nationalism, and at time populism. Candidates thought the question is asked about the human rights that how these are challenging the liberal democracies in the world. Moreover, there was a small minority of the candidates who were well prepared and attempted questions in a better manner.

GK-III (Pakistan Affairs):

Appeared	Fail	Pass
16887	7709	9178

About 20% papers attempted very well. The expression of knowledge in the papers was outstanding. The papers were attempted neat and clean with margin lines on both sides of the papers. The question number and question parts number were mentioned exactly as mentioned on question papers. The headings were properly described and the lines were drawn at the end of each question. The required knowledge was wisely expressed and the issues were explained by many candidates through diagrams that was the appreciable part of the paper. Almost 40% papers were attempted not that much well, neatness was missing. The knowledge was communicated in the answers but sometimes the question numbers or proper headings were found missing which put the examiners in trouble. The diagrams were also there but sometime it was not clear or not relevant to the topic. The remaining 40 % were below average though some candidates hand writing was impressive. Due to poor English or poor explanation of the topic sometime found it difficult to comprehend the answers. Time management was another issue. Due to poor time management a large number of them have wasted their time on one or two question the rest were remained incomplete or missed altogether.

Islamiat/ Comparative Study of Major Religions:

Appeared	Fail	Pass
16887	13694	3193

Islamiat:

- a. There were only a few candidates who have knowledge about the original text of the Holy Quran and Hadith Literature.
- b. So many candidates had not practiced writing Arabic Language, so they did not present correct wording of the Holy Quran and Hadith literature
- c. Most students writing only translations were not able to give correct translations of the Quranic Text
- d. Most of them narrated only their views in their own words like historians
- e. So many candidates did not write the matters as were demanded in the questions but they submitted as they had in their minds even though they were irrelevant.

- f. A lot of candidates narrated fabricated text of the Holy Quran, Hadith Literature and stories from historical events which were not correct. Apparently they were of the opinion that no page should be left blank.
- g. Some candidates answered all the questions but in each answer they repeated question paper again and again.
- h. Some candidates tried to answer the questions in English Language but they did not have command over the language. Hence, they presented their views in "Roman Urdu".

Comparative Study of Major Religions:

General Performance of candidates in attempting this paper is remarkable. 24% candidates have secured good score among which many have written answers in analytical, comparative and logical style.

Overall weak area of remaining candidates is lack of consultation of authentic Literature. They have presented insignificant views about the subject. It is suggested that who opt this paper should read all religions included in the syllabus from encyclopedia Britannica and the Encyclopedia of religion or ethics are very rich having best material regarding the key knowledge of religions.

At most all candidates have focused on local social and ethnic situation. They have not presented examples of successful ethnic societies except those who have secured outstanding marks.
